BIG IDEAS To Reinforce

Being Yourself & Acceptance

Student-Friendly Learning Target

I can write a paper about a unique quality I possess and give reasons to why I believe it is important to be true to that quality regardless of others.

Build Background

As a class, have students discuss something that is unique about them. As an example, compare/contrast yourself to a student by creating a Venn Diagram on the whiteboard. Identify both your similar and different qualities.

Key Vocabulary

lima beans	pg 2
ointment	pg 5
distraction	pg 11
contagious	pg 11
bizarre	pg 19
vanished	pg 29

Discussion Starters

1. How would you feel if you woke up completely covered in stripes?
2. What do you think the students will say when they see Camilla?
3. The other kids did not use the E in NED (Encourage others) when they saw Camilla and laughed at her. How do you think Camilla felt? Has there even been a time when you've laughed at others? Why? Do you wish you hadn't?
4. How do you think the little old woman knew the cure for a bad case of stripes?
5. Camilla realizes that it is ok to be different. What would it be like if everyone was the same and only liked the same things?
6. What advice do you think NED would give to Camilla?

Writing Prompt

Identify Unique Qualities Using ideas from the group discussion, have each student create a Venn Diagram comparing and contrasting their unique qualities with a friend or family member.

Activities

Allow students to paint their faces with stripes or take a picture of each student and allow them to add stripes to their face using crayons/markers or a computer program. Display the pictures along with a writing prompt about their unique qualities.
